It wasn't supposed to be like this. The trumpet would sound, the dead rise and those of us remained were supposed to join the Lord in the air.

Dan Fields should not have survived his last mission and Henry Yumoto had no intention of abandoning his life in San Francisco, but both men find their destinies intertwined in Tulsa.

In the aftermath of Israel's strike on Iran's nuclear sites a rising Turkish political figure leads the Organization of Islamic Conference into a seven year Middle East peace treaty.

Almost two years later it rains fire, the Pacific turned to blood, people fall sick from drinking water, the days are shortened and the sun dimmed. With the world in chaos, a man descends from the Syrian sky into Damascus, joining the Turk and calling himself Isa, Jesus in Arabic.

And this is only the beginning.

Signs of the Times is the first of two novels set during the Tribulation. The second part is being written at this time and should be published next year.
