These 30 case studies are designed to strengthen the deductive thinking skills of students studying anatomy and physiology, as well as to help them to reinforce their factual knowledge in anatomy and physiology, and include some background information with each study. Each case is designed to present a situation close to real life medical scenarios and so information is presented as it might be seen in a patients hospital or clinical chart. The student is left to decide which information is pertinent and case questions and answers are provided.
