Principles of International Environmental Law II: Documents in International Environmental Law (Studies in International Law) (v. 2) Philippe Sands, Richard Tarasofsky

A companion to the first volume in a three-volume set, this document collection includes all the key international legal instruments in this field. A third volume, published separately, includes the documents in European Community environmental law. The set of volumes gives a comprehensive account of one of the fastest-growing areas of international law - the principles and rules relating to the protection of the environment and the conservation of natural resources. It incorporates all the key material from the 1992 United Nations Conference on Environment and Development. The two-volume document set provides source material for the textbook. All three volumes are available as one book, or separately.
